

STUDY PERIOD 11

IMPORTANT DATES (SP11)

Intensive/Block Study Periods

What are block/intensive study periods?

Block/intensive study periods are a type of teaching period where students attend classes for a continuous period of time. These periods are typically used for subjects that require a high level of concentration and are often used for subjects that are delivered in a block mode. The duration of these periods can vary from 13 days to 13 weeks. For more information on block/intensive study periods, please refer to the University Handbook or contact your subject coordinator. For more information on block/intensive study periods, please refer to the University Handbook or contact your subject coordinator. For more information on block/intensive study periods, please refer to the University Handbook or contact your subject coordinator.

Preparing for block mode subjects

For more information on preparing for block mode subjects, please refer to the University Handbook or contact your subject coordinator.

Notes:

---

---

---

---

---